

LETTER FROM THE FOUNDER

The cornerstone of Canning Hunger are concern and compassion. I founded Canning Hunger because of a concern for the needy in America. As I served them I found so many to be so different than I had originally thought.

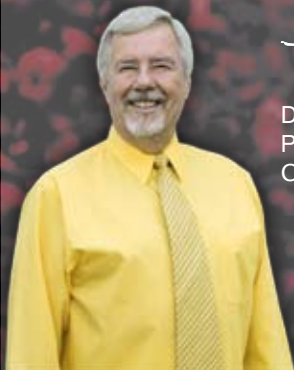

I discovered people who were down but not out. Most of them were looking for a hand up, not a hand out and if given a chance, they would choose change rather than enabling. My mission went from giving out of sympathy, to discovering ways to empower them.

I developed programs that are structured to provide job training, work therapy, skills development, and personal growth. Thousands of men and women have been given opportunities to change the direction of their lives and have chosen to become responsible, productive citizens.

One of our programs is "Home Team Volunteers." It has become a model of how to achieve success through hard work and structured activity. Teamwork, training, and education are combined to produce a bright future for individuals in transition.

The result enables Canning Hunger to provide a quality staffing force that benefits our volunteers and the venues we work with.

I encourage you to join our team and be part of the victory in the biggest game of all... Life!
